Field, Forest & Stream: The History of Oklahomans and the Outdoors exhibit to premier on April 4 at Oklahoma History Center

The Oklahoma Historical Society and the Oklahoma Department of Wildlife Conservation are proud to present Field, Forest & Stream: The History of Oklahomans and the Outdoors, a special exhibition at the Oklahoma History Center. The new exhibit opens to the public on Friday, April 4, and continues through 2008.

Visitors to the new exhibit will find many interesting things to see and do. Artifacts and manuscripts from collections such as those of aviator and avid outdoorsman Wiley Post, pioneering outdoor television producer Don Wallace, and various Oklahoma-based companies are on display. The beautiful craftsmanship of a Plains Indian bow and quiver, the diverse shapes and colors of Oklahoma-made fishing lures, and the charm of vintage Oklahoma camping equipment are just a few of the artifacts to be discovered.

The three main sections of the exhibit are presented as hiking trails that guests will follow. Trek along the Water Trail to learn the history of Oklahoma's streams, rivers, and lakes. A high-definition video aquarium displays real-life Oklahoma game fish species in their natural setting. A hands-on catfish noodling activity allows the visitor to experience what only a brave few have tried. Holes and crevices in a simulated cut bank provide the noodler with different tactile sensations.

May 3 is Red Hat Day at History Center

Mark your calendar for Red Hat Saturday at the Oklahoma History Center. The one-of-a-kind event will take place on May 3 from 1 to 5 p.m.

Activities will include a Make-It, Take-It hat-making workshop, followed by high tea. On the menu are finger sandwiches and petit fours, iced tea and lemonade. After tea, there will be a promenade of the hats made during the workshop.

Cost to attend is $45 for an OHS member and $50 for a nonmember. The RSVP date is April 25.

Seating is limited. Reservations are required and may be obtained by calling Robbin Davis at 405/577-0754 or e-mailing her at <rdavis@okhistory.org>.

Take a stroll down the Forest Trail to learn about Oklahoma's national forests, game management areas, wildlife refuges, preserves, and state parks. Beginning in the 1820s the United States' Indian Removal policies forced thousands to settle in the region, after which the populations of game animals began to decline. Since the Territorial Legislature enacted the first hunting laws, it has been a long road to recovery for Oklahoma's wildlife. The Forest Trail includes a life-size hunting blind interactive exhibit that gives the visitor a chance to climb into the blind, sit down, and choose between a number of outdoor sport and conservation activities.

A walk down the exhibit's Camp Trail will provide an experience in the cultural history of this popular form of outdoor recreation. See examples of vintage camping equipment, traditional camping methods, and Oklahoma recipes from over the years. For those who love to sit by the campfire, the Camp Trail will feature camp stories told in an interactive presentation.

Field, Forest & Stream will open to the public on April 4, 2008, in the E. L. and Thelma Gaylord Special Exhibit Gallery in the Oklahoma History Center, 2401 North Laird Ave., Oklahoma City.

Cherokee Strip Regional Heritage Center wins preservation award

The Oklahoma Heritage Association recently selected the Cherokee Strip Regional Heritage Center to receive the 2008 Gaylord Oklahoma Territory Award for Preservation of State and Local History. Two awards are given, one to an organization in former Indian Territory and the other in former Oklahoma Territory. Along with the honor of being chosen, the Heritage Center also received a $5,000 cash prize. The awards luncheon was held on March 26 at the new Gaylord-Pickens Oklahoma Heritage Museum in Oklahoma City.

The campaign to build and endow the Cherokee Strip Regional Heritage Center has enjoyed tremendous support, with more than $7.8 million of the $8 million goal secured in gifts and pledges. The museum is being completely remodeled and doubled in size to a 24,000-square-foot facility. When complete, the Heritage Center will have all-new exhibits, a theater, a traveling exhibit gallery, and a state-of-the-art research center. The grand opening is slated for the spring of 2009.

While construction is under way, the Heritage Center is operating in a space in Oakwood Mall near J. C. Penney. The mall location features an exhibit hall, resources for research on the 1893 land run, information on the capital campaign, and an active programming schedule. For the most current information on the project, please visit <www.regionalheritagecenter.org> or contact the staff at 580/234-8999 or by mail at P.O. Box 5891, Enid, OK 73702.

Director's Column

By Bob L. Blackburn
Executive Director

Cyrus Avery was a smart man. In this case, I am not referring to his impact on the economic development of Tulsa, his leadership in creating the modern Oklahoma Highway Department, or his legacy as the "Father of Route 66."

I am talking about his philosophy of life. When asked his opinion of what it took to be happy, Avery replied, "Someone to love, something to do, and something to look forward to."

I like that.

For me, the first part has come true in so many ways, thanks to my wife, my son, my family, and my friends.

For the second part of his formula for happiness, I have the Oklahoma Historical Society to thank.

The OHS has given me plenty to do, starting with consulting work in historic preservation while I was still in graduate school and continuing with a decade of work on The Chronicles of Oklahoma, the best postdoctorate a historian could want.

Then came the reorganization of the agency in the 1990s, a long list of projects, from the Route 66 Museum to the Honey Springs Battlefield, and of course, the new Oklahoma History Center. In terms of things to do, I have been blessed.

Development News

By Tim Zwink

It's springtime once again, and that means it's time for our OHS Annual Meeting. I invite you to join us on April 16, 17, and 18 in Ardmore, a town with a rich and varied history, located on the edge of the Arbuckle Mountains. The Annual Meeting Committee, chaired by Ken Rainbolt, has planned an exciting program that offers OHS members and guests fun, fellowship, and a great educational experience.

The committee has organized many activities, including a special reception to honor the OHS Oklahoma Historians Hall of Fame members or representatives, ten paper sessions on a variety of topics mostly related to the Annual Meeting theme, "Boundaries, Bridges, and Borderlands: The Red River in Oklahoma History," and a trip to Fort Washita Historic Site for an evening of food, fun, and education. Our luncheon speaker, Galen Culver, noted photojournalist from KFOR television, is scheduled to provide an address on "Life along the Red River." His presentation promises to be entertaining and enlightening.

We will top off our Annual Meeting with the Annual Awards Luncheon on Friday, April 18, at noon. It is always exciting to recognize and honor the year's recipients of the prestigious OHS awards and to induct a new class into the Oklahoma Historians Hall of Fame. Nearly all of our activities will be in the beautiful, 45,700-square-foot Ardmore Convention Center. Our hotel accommodations for the meeting are conveniently located within minutes of the Ardmore Convention Center. If you haven't made room reservations, I recommend you do so soon because rooms at the conference rate are limited. As you can see, the Annual Meeting Committee has planned a great lineup of activities for this year's gathering. You can find a detailed schedule of the Annual Meeting elsewhere in this issue of Mistletoe Leaves. See you in Ardmore!

For the third part of Avery's formula for happiness, I once again lean on what the Oklahoma Historical Society does for me. We have so much to look forward to.

In the short term, we are turning the corner on the digital revolution, scanning hundreds of documents, maps, and photos every day, posting more and more information on the web for access to collections, and providing new research opportunities for family historians.

We also are hot on the trail of new collections. Over the next few weeks, I will have the pleasure of working on three collections, including the archives of a merchant who ran a trading post for the Comanche, Kiowa, and Apache, the collection of a midcentury architectural designer, and a soapbox derby racer that reached the state semifinals in 1955.

In the long term, we have a mounting stack of opportunities that drives me forward. There is work to do on projects like the Haozous-Houser family film and exhibit, a rock 'n' roll exhibit, and a new partnership with the Tulsa Historical Society that will result in a new exhibit on the International Oil Exposition.

We have the bicentennial of Abraham Lincoln's birth, which will empower us to draw attention to Lincoln's legacy in Oklahoma, from land grant colleges and the Homestead Act to the Civil War and the epic story "from slavery to freedom." Then will come the sesquicentennial of the first oil discovery in Oklahoma, the Civil War sesquicentennial, and a project with the Reynolds Foundation and Mount Vernon to share the legacy of George Washington with students.

The list of opportunities goes on. Yes, Cyrus Avery was a smart man. And I am a happy historian.

Bring the family to the Cherokee Strip Rural Heritage Festival April 26

Perry's Cherokee Strip Museum will host its annual Rural Heritage Festival from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday, April 26, on the grounds of the museum. The festivities celebrate community heritage, but this year there will be a dedication of the museum's Centennial Project. This is an official project of the Centennial Commission and is funded in part by a grant made possible by the legislature.

Throughout the day volunteers will conduct living history interpretations and skills-and-lifestyles demonstrations to help people understand what it was like to live in rural communities that were based on agriculture.

Rose Hill School will be in session, and the public is encouraged to take part in the lessons. Students from Morrison will wrap the May Pole. Saltfork Blacksmiths will show their skills. There will also be a settlers' camp, a cowboy camp, and an American Indian tipi. Skills and rural fun will include rope making, square dancing, basket weaving, and soap making. The Lace Guild of Oklahoma will illustrate lace making techniques.

Admission is free, but donations help fund the event in the future.

The Cherokee Strip Museum is located at 2617 W. Fir in Perry. Contact the staff at <csmuseum@okhistory.org> or call them at 580/336-2405.

Healdton Oil Museum

315 East Main St.
Healdton, OK 73438-1836
Phone: 580/497-3929
Hours: Mon.-Fri., 9 a.m.-5 p.m.
Admission: Free; donations accepted.

The Healdton Oil Museum, an Oklahoma Historical Society affiliate, is located twenty miles west of Ardmore on U.S. Highway 70, then five miles north at the junction of State Highway 76 and U.S. 70. The museum offers artifacts and photographs that tell the story of the development of the petroleum industry in Carter County and the effects of the rise and fall of the tumultuous oil-boom towns.

The Healdton oil field opened in 1913 and developed into the largest of nine fields in Carter County. Oil was extracted from shallow depths in that area; thus it received the moniker "poor man's" field, because drilling costs were inexpensive. As word spread about the find, an estimated 120 oil companies and well-known Oklahomans such as Lloyd Noble, Wirt Franklin, Robert A. Hefner, Sr., Erle Halliburton, and others helped burgeon the local economy. Like that of other Oklahoma boomtowns, Healdton's oil industry suffered from low prices following World War I and during the Great Depression. During the 1920s and 1930s the field began to be depleted.

Those interested in learning more about the Healdton Field and its effects on Ardmore's economy and the development of transportation for crude oil should consult past issues of The Chronicles of Oklahoma. For a discussion transport by wagon and oxen over dirt roads, railroads, and pipelines, see Gilbert L. Robinson's "Transportation in Carter County, 1913-1917," The Chronicles of Oklahoma 19 (December 1941). Mac McGalliard's "Pioneer Spirit: The Centennial History of Ardmore," published in The Chronicles of Oklahoma 65 (Spring 1987), mentions the effects of Healdton's oil boom on Ardmore's population and businesses. The Healdton Field is also mentioned in Drills Bits, Picks, and Shovels: A History of Mineral Resources in Oklahoma, ed. John W. Morris (Oklahoma City: OHS, 1982).

SHPO announces May 2008 workshops to be held in Chickasha

The Oklahoma State Historic Preservation Office is pleased to announce its May workshop series to be held May 7-9 at the University of Science and Arts of Oklahoma (USAO), Student Union Basement Meeting Room, 1727 West Alabama, Chickasha, Oklahoma. The workshops are free and open to the public. Register by 5 p.m., Wednesday, April 30. To register, contact Shea Otley at 405/521-6249 or <sjotley@okhistory.org>. Registered architects who attend can earn American Institute of Architects Continuing Education System learning unit hours. For more about the workshops, call Deputy SHPO Melvena Heisch at 405/522-4484 or e-mail <mheisch@okhistory.org>.

May 7 (9:30 a.m.-12 noon) The Section 106 Review Process: Introduction and Overview

The half-day workshop provides the basics about Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act and how the process works in Oklahoma. Specific topics include who is responsible for Section 106 compliance, when does Section 106 apply, what is the State Historic Preservation Office's role in the process, what other agencies are involved, what is a historic property, and what happens when a project will effect a historic property. The workshop is designed as a stand-alone session and as a companion to Determination of Eligibility under Section 106. Participants should also consider attending Guidelines for Rehabilitating Historic Buildings.

May 7 (1:30 p.m. - 5 p.m.) Determination of Eligibility under Section 106

The session provides a step-by-step description of how to document standing structures for the State Historic Preservation Office's review. Specific topics include a discussion of the National Register of Historic Places Criteria for Evaluation, how to complete the Historic Preservation Resource Identification Form, photograph requirements, what a determination of eligibility means, how differences of opinion about eligibility are resolved, and when consultants may be helpful to agencies in preparing documentation for the Section 106 process. The session is designed as a stand-alone workshop or as a companion to The Section 106 Review Process: Introduction and Overview. Participants should also consider attending the session on Guidelines for Rehabilitating Historic Buildings.

May 8 (9:30 a.m. - 5 p.m.) Working with the National Register of Historic Places

The National Register of Historic Places is the foundation of the SHPO's programs, and a basic understanding of the Register is essential for those involved in historic preservation at all levels of government and in the private sector. The workshop provides detailed information about the National Register criteria, what listing means, the rights of property owners in the nomination process, tips for preparing successful nominations, and much more.

May 9 (9:30 a.m.- 12 noon) Federal and State Tax Incentives for Rehabilitating Historic Buildings

In this half-day workshop participants will learn about the federal and state investment tax credits for certified rehabilitation of a certified historic structure. A detailed discussion of the Historic Preservation Certification Application, Parts 1, 2, and 3 will guide owners and developers in successfully preparing the information needed for the State Historic Preservation Office to review the project and for the National Park Service to certify it. This session is designed as a stand-alone workshop or as a companion to Guidelines for Rehabilitating Historic Buildings.

May 9 (1:30 p.m. - 5 p.m.) Guidelines for Rehabilitating Historic Buildings

The half-day workshop features a thorough discussion of the Secretary of the Interior's Standards and Guidelines for Rehabilitation. Generally referred to as the Standards, these common-sense principles are widely used in the historic preservation field. Whether you are involved in a rehabilitation project for the 20% federal and 20% state tax credits, planning a rehabilitation project funded with federal assistance, serving on a local historic preservation commission, or just wanting to know the best approach to rehabilitating your historic private home, you will find this session invaluable. It is designed as a stand-alone workshop and as a companion to Federal and State Tax Incentives for Rehabilitation.

The Muriel H. Wright Collection

By Larry O'Dell

An important personality in the development of the Oklahoma Historical Society, Muriel Wright helped educate generations of the state's students. Her papers (83.18), held in the OHS Research Division, concern not just her term as editor of The Chronicles of Oklahoma, but her personal affiliations with many clubs and organizations and her personal research, including genealogical material. Her OHS materials are integral to understanding the importance of The Chronicles to the formation, the process, and the kind of Oklahoma history that was introduced to the "historical record."

Born at Lehigh in 1889 to a missionary mother, Ida Belle Richards, and a Choctaw father, Dr. Eliphalet Nott Wright, Muriel proudly promoted her biracial ancestry. She avidly researched her heritage and held many offices in the Choctaw Nation. Educated in a seminary in Massachusetts and completing her degree at East Central Normal School, later East Central University, she taught at several educational institutions in Oklahoma. She later attended Barnard College in New York City.

Beginning in the early 1920s Wright actively published Oklahoma history through articles and books, including the four volume Oklahoma: A History of the State, with Joseph Thoburn. In 1943 Wright took over the editorial duties for The Chronicles, but she did not receive the official title of editor until 1955. During her time at OHS she initiated several other projects, influencing the society's direction before her retirement in 1973.

She earned numerous accolades, including induction into the Oklahoma Hall of Fame (1940), the University of Oklahoma's Distinguished Service Award (1950), and an honorary doctorate from Oklahoma City University (1964). In 1993 she posthumously became one of the first-year inductees into the Oklahoma Historical Society's Historians Hall of Fame. Muriel Wright died in 1975.

The voluminous collection, containing twenty-six boxes, spans Wright's lifetime of collecting and work. She corresponded with a "who's who" of historians and makers of Oklahoma history, including Joseph Thoburn, Emmet Starr, Patrick Hurley, Gov. Robert L. Williams, Grant Foreman, George Shirk, Gov. Johnston Murray, B. B. Chapman, W. S. Campbell, E. E. Dale, Charles Gould, Todd Downing, Genevieve Seger, and several others. The Wright material includes articles and items concerning The Chronicles as well as other OHS-related items, including meeting minutes, annual reports, and publications. Tolders relating to Wright's club work contain the same types of papers, including correspondence and published items. There are also genealogical materials and a number of photographs. OHS volunteer Jim Cloud began the monumental task of processing Miss Wright's collection, and Oklahoma University intern Ezmeralda Lopez has labored to complete the archival work and enter the data in the Research Division's online catalog.

As with all OHS research materials, the Muriel Wright Collection can be accessed in the John and Eleanor Kirkpatrick Research Center.

Meet a Mountain Man at the Fort Washita Rendezvous

Trappers and traders will descend upon the scenic beauty of Fort Washita in early April 2008. From April 2 through 6 the rendezvous will be open to the public.

Fur trading in the Oklahoma region flourished for nearly a half century. Trading posts were first located on the Arkansas and Red Rivers as early as 1779 and outfitted mountain men by trading them the items they needed in return for furs that they brought to the post.

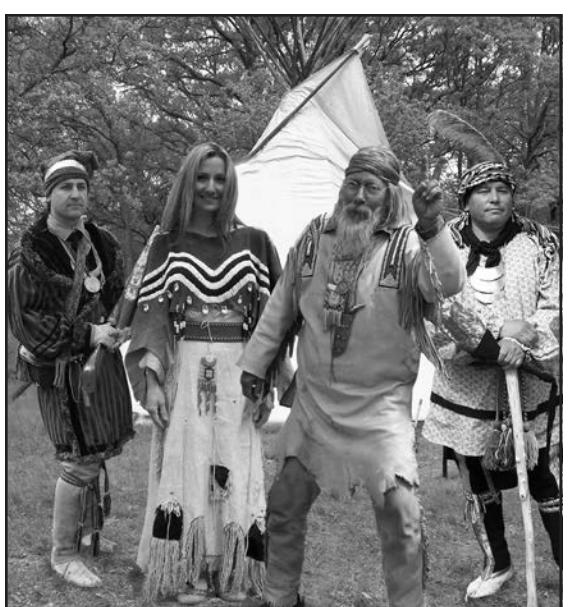

During this year's Fort Washita Rendezvous mountain men will compete against each other in the use of weapons—rifles, pistols, tomahawks, knives, and bows and arrows—as well as in proficiency in various skills such as fire starting.

Visitors will be able to observe the clothing, camping methods, and artifacts from that time period. Vendors will offer various authentically designed items from the period.

School days, Thursday, April 3, and Friday, April 4, will provide local students with an opportunity to learn about trapping, trading, mountain man survival skills, and early-day commerce in Oklahoma. On Saturday, April 5, short educational programs will be presented to the public on the half hour at the Council Circle.

Events open at 9 a.m. and continue to 5 p.m. each day except Sunday, for which the hours are 9 to 3. Admission is $5 per vehicle per day. Fort Washita is situated on State Highway 199 between Durant and Madill.

For more information call 580/924-6502.

Fort Gibson Heritage Days set for April 18–19

Heritage Days will be presented at Fort Gibson Historic Site on Friday, April 18, and Saturday, April 19, according to Chris Morgan, site attendant. Visitors to the free event will see many new presentations as well as several old favorites. The 2008 offerings will include mounted reenactors such as the 1840s U.S. Dragoons and the Civil War cavalry as well as American Indian and African American portrayals. Visitors on Education Day, April 18, will see a concentration of living history demonstrations presented especially for local school children.

Saturday's event will offer a "Day in the Life" presentation inside the log fort, where an 1830s garrison will carry on the daily routine of the frontier bastion in its heyday.

This year's event will also include demonstrations of soap making and candle making. A historic weapons demonstration and military music presentation will occur on Saturday afternoon.

Historical crafts and vendors, as well as historical foods and bread from the post bake, oven will be available, as will a "modern" food area with burgers, barbecue, etc.

The gates open at 10 a.m. and affairs continue through 5 p.m. each day.

Fort Gibson Historic Site, operated by the OHS, is located on State Highway 80 in Fort Gibson. For information call the staff at 918/478-4088.

New photography exhibit at Perry's Cherokee Strip Museum

Photography: Images of Our Past is the newest exhibit at the Cherokee Strip Museum. The exhibit, on view now and continuing through 2008, displays an array of the photography equipment once owned by Anton Shultz, amateur photographer and early-day farmer who lived near Red Rock, Oklahoma. Photography had become a popular hobby during the early part of the twentieth century. Photographic equipment and supplies were easily purchased from mail-order catalogs such as a 1908 reproduction Sears, Roebuck and Co. catalog, which is on display.

The exhibit also showcases studio portraits of children taken by professional photographers in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. While some of the images have identifications, many of the children remained unidentified when the photographs were donated by local families to the museum. The staff invites visitors to enjoy an opportunity to see Paul Cress or Thelma Knox as a small child. Staff would welcome an identification of some of the unknown children.

During the coming year the museum plans to change the photographic images on exhibit to highlight the extensive photographic collection housed at the Cherokee Strip Museum. To view additional local-interest images, visit the museum's website at <www.cherokee-strip-museum.org>.

Museum hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday (closed Sundays, Mondays, and all legal holidays). There is no admission fee, but donations are always accepted.

Contact the museum at 580/336-2405.

April events at Enid's Cherokee Strip Heritage Center Outreach Space

On April 9, Wednesday, at noon Glen McIntyre, education director, will lecture on the Civil War in Indian Territory. Although the Civil War in Oklahoma did not have large battles, the Battle of Honey Springs was a serious encounter between North and South. The long-term consequences for Indian Territory were very severe, as the tribes themselves were split between followers of the Union and the Confederacy.

On April 16, Wednesday, at noon, Bruce Fisher of OHS will present a First Person Impression of Inman Page, the first president of Langston University.

On April 19, Saturday, at 1 p.m. Susan Woods of the Garfield County Genealogy Society will present a genealogy workshop.

All of these programs will be offered in the Outreach Space of the Cherokee Strip Regional Heritage Center, Enid, Oklahoma. The Outreach Space is in the far eastern end of Oakwood Mall, next to J. C. Penney, on West Garriott Avenue. For more information call Glen McIntyre at 580/237-1907.
