Music from Oklahoma @ the Movies a success

On the evening of Wednesday, October 30, the OHS and Oklahoma City University (OCU) teamed up to present “An Evening of Music from Oklahoma @ the Movies” at the Oklahoma History Center for donors of both organizations. The night featured songs from movies with an Oklahoma connection performed by the OCU Symphony Orchestra.

The welcome address was given by Dr. Bob Blackburn, executive director of the OHS, and Robert Henry, president of OCU. Jeff Moore, director of OKPOP, served as the master of ceremonies. The evening included music from movies such as Last of the Mohicans, The Pink Panther, E.T.: The Extra-Terrestrial, Far and Away, and of course the musical Oklahoma! Former governor George Nigh conducted the state song.

The evening marked the second collaboration between the OHS and OCU’s Wanda L. Bass School of Music, made possible through the generosity of Richard and Jeanette Sias. Both organizations and their leaders were proud to celebrate the state’s historical moments and figures with music.

The OCU Symphony Orchestra is a student ensemble composed of music and non-music majors, graduates and undergraduates. The orchestra won the Adventurous Programming Award and in 2004 represented the United States at the “Meet in Beijing” arts festival. The symphony gives numerous concerts each year and serves as the basis for the pit orchestras in the school’s opera and music theater productions. The experience the students gain plays a significant role in developing and preparing them for work as professional musicians.

I like good ideas, especially when they aim high, attract partners, and have a long-lasting impact.

Two good ideas recently intersected here at the Oklahoma History Center. One was to celebrate Oklahoma as a “Crossroads of Creativity” and the other was to honor a good friend’s legacy of public service.

It started when I called OCU President Robert Henry and Mark Parker, the dean of the Wanda Bass School of Music, to ask if they could add one production piece to a symphonic program already planned. They liked the idea, but suggested the appropriate venue would be the History Center. They offered to bring the entire OCU symphony orchestra.

The original idea was to celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of then-State Representative George Nigh’s bill making “Oklahoma!” the official state song. With the full orchestra available, we decided to expand the program to “Music from Oklahoma @ the Movies,” which would complement the exhibit on the same topic.

While Jeff Moore and Larry O’Dell selected songs, clips, and interviews from movies associated with Oklahomans, I called Dick Sias and asked if he would like to be an event sponsor. He quickly said yes, it was time to celebrate Oklahoma history through music again. Meanwhile, Mark Parker and his conductor, Bob Nilles, started orchestration and rehearsals.

I called Bob Burke to see if he would introduce Nigh, who would conduct the orchestra as they played “Oklahoma!” Burke agreed, then added even more value to the event when he offered to raise $10,000 to endow a George Nigh Internship on Public Service. He would announce the effort at the event, and those who made a donation would receive a copy of his book on “Oklahoma!” and a DVD recording of a previous OCU-History Center musical program.

The event was magical. As Robert Henry and I greeted the audience, he pulled out the sheet music for “Oklahoma: A Toast,” the state song replaced by “Oklahoma!” and led a group singing. Jeff Moore, the director of the OKPOP Museum, served as master of ceremonies and alternated histories of Oklahomans in the movies, clips, and interviews with songs performed by the orchestra. Songs came from The Pink Panther, Apocalypse Now, Lawrence of Arabia, The Buddy Holly Story, and Far and Away.

The evening concluded with George Nigh telling his classic story of getting “Oklahoma!” adopted as the official state song, followed by a rousing rendition played by the OCU orchestra and sung by the OCU Surrey Singers. Nigh was inspired, as was the audience. We raised almost $3,000 toward the endowed internship to encourage the study of public service.

Yes, I like good ideas.

Events

The Norman Ballet Company’s 2013 production of the Oklahoma Nutcracker will be performed on Sunday, December 1, at 3 p.m. at the Nancy O’Brian Center for the Performing Arts in Norman. The Oklahoma Nutcracker is based on historical Oklahoma characters and themes of nature, brought to life onstage through the traditional Nutcracker story and Tchaikovsky score. The ballet is set on Christmas Eve 1907 at the Overholser Mansion in Oklahoma City, where Henry and Anna Overholser and their children, Henry Lone and Henry Samuel, are hosting the neighborhood’s holiday party. All seats for the Oklahoma Nutcracker performance are reserved. Individual seats are $20 per person. There is also a block of seating set aside at a family rate of four for $60. Preperformance activities include the popular Sand Plum Fairy Tea Party, which will begin at 1 p.m. in the Studio Theater, and activities for children. Tickets are $18 per person to attend the tea party and all children must be accompanied by an adult. For more information or to purchase tickets, visit www.ticketstorm.com or call 1866/966-1777.

The historic Mattie Beal Home in Lawton will host a book signing by Dr. Lynn Musslewhite on The Historic Mattie Beal Home: A History on December 6 from 5 to 8 p.m. The work tells the story of Martha “Mattie” Beal, a young woman from Wichita, Kansas, who registered for the land lottery in the Lawton area in 1901. It also presents the history of the historic home she lived in, now cared for by the Lawton Heritage Association. Copies of the book will be available for sale at the signing for $20. For more information, call 580/678-3156.

From November 22 to January 5 an array of Christmas-themed activities await you in Oklahoma City at Santa’s Adventures on the Oklahoma River. Race down a two-hundred-foot zip line as you attempt to drop a wrapped present into a chimney, then head over to an indoor rock wall to scale it as high as you can go. Kids and adults alike will enjoy bouncing on four giant inflatable toys, and children ages three to nine can paddle a kayak in the Chesapeake Boathouse reflecting pool. Santa’s Adventures on the Oklahoma River also features an extreme air jumper, where you can feel the wind in your hair as you fly up to twenty feet in the air with the safety of a harness. This family-friendly event is great for all ages. For more information, call 405/522-4040. (travelok.com)

The All Nations Powwow in Ada on December 1 features arts and crafts, food, music, powwow dancing, and contests. Come to this annual powwow held in the Kerr Activity Center at East Central University to see gourd dancing, a grand entry, and a color guard. The event will feature Northern Drum Midnite Express. The gourd dance is scheduled for 1 p.m. followed by the powwow’s grand entry at 3 p.m. Visit allnationsok.com or call 580/332-1983 for more details. (travelok.com)

Get in the holiday spirit with a tour through the Thompson House in Tahlequah from December 6 to 8. Victorian-clothed characters host this event in the historic Thompson House as visitors browse through hundreds of handcrafted items for sale. The Thompson House kitchen will be open selling homemade treats, including their famous pepper jelly. The house is located at 300 South College Avenue in Tahlequah. For more information, call 918/456-1595. (travelok.com)

Bring the whole family to Keystone State Park in Sand Springs on December 7 and watch as boats of all sizes decorated with Christmas lights make their way across the lake. The Christmas Boat Parade, which begins at dusk, will feature everything from house boats to bass boats festively adorned for the holidays. The boat parade will feature the Pier 51 Marina at 51 Marina in Sand Springs to Salt Creek North, the New Mannford ramp, and the Prairie View ramp before returning to Pier 51 Marina. Guests will be able to view the beautiful sight from Keystone State Park and Keystone Lake Dam. For more information, call 918/865-4991. (travelok.com)

The Minco Honey Festival on December 7 is the event to attend for pure, sweet Oklahoma honey from the largest honey producing facility in the state. Tours of the Ross Honey Plant will be given throughout the day by the owners, and an impressive array of honey products and gifts will be available for purchase. This year’s festival will also feature the popular and much-anticipated honey bake-off. Free samples will be available to the public. Minco dairy producers will also have free samples of cheese and milk products. The festival will include more than one hundred crafters, a quilt show, a kids’ tractor pull, and booths filled with Made in Oklahoma products. For more information, call 405/350-8937. (travelok.com)

Santa Claus is coming to Shidler on December 14, so make sure to secure your seat along the parade route for Shidler’s annual lighted Christmas parade. This holiday event features a downtown parade, lighted float competition, children’s seasonal fancy dress competition, and decorated bicycles. Santa will be handing out goodie bags, taking photos with waiting youngsters, and listening to plenty of Christmas wish lists. Enjoy hot chocolate and warm, homemade cookies, Christmas music, and lots of good cheer while waiting to see which parade floats win top honors. There will also be caroling throughout Shidler after the parade, so make your way to this north Oklahoma town for the start of a merry Christmas. For more information, call 918/793-4021. (travelok.com)

Make your way to Yukon on December 19 for the holiday performance of “Sounds of the Season.” This eighteenth annual concert at the Yukon Fine Arts Center is guaranteed to put all visitors in a festive holiday mood. “Sounds of the Season” features the Oklahoma City Philharmonic performing Christmas favorites. New exhibit at the Cherokee Strip Museum

Researchers will find unique and fascinating stories of the trials and hardships of the settlers of the Cherokee Strip at the Paul Cress Research Library, under construction at the Cherokee Strip Museum in Perry. A new collection involves one such story. Elizabeth “Bessie” Cockrell, born in Illinois, had been an ambitious young woman working for the offices of the American Cotton Oil Company and the Fidelity Casualty Company of New York. She was a member of the South Congregational Church of Chicago and active in the Young People’s Society, Christian Endeavor. Cockrell was married to Edward Root Wells on July 8, 1896, in Kimmundry, Illinois. Wells was a pioneer settler of the Cherokee Strip, obtaining land in Noble County on September 16, 1893. He had been an adventurous young man and had worked as a sheep rancher in Canada, a government worker at the Denver mint, a stagecoach driver in Old Mexico, and a stagecoach driver for the Butterfield line. With these experiences the newly wedded couple was ready to take on another challenge—a challenge that would surpass all their previous experiences.

During the days prior to the wedding, Cockrell had written to Wells’s mother with excitement about her selection as his fiancée and her knowledge of the hardships of farm life, but she stated that “love lightens labor” and she looked forward to the happy days “down on the claim.”

After their wedding ceremony, the couple packed their boxes, began their journey, and went about twenty-five miles to the town of Odin. There Cockrell writes that they were treated to a jubilee (for the presidential candidate William Jennings Bryan) with an impromptu rally with a cannon, bonfires, flags, and speech by such a distinguished man. They arrived at Red Rock and were met by Uncle Rube who took them to Wells’s claim.

Wells had improved his claim in the strip and was able to bring Cockrell to a three-room frame house with a well, stable, corn crib, granary, barn, two acres of orchard, livestock and poultry, and 110 acres under cultivation. We can assume she felt well-off for frontier living. With hard work they were able to improve their food sources with a garden, grains, and more fruit trees. Cockrell also acquired a sewing machine with which she made clothes for her husband, herself, and the new additions to their family. Helen, their first child, was born July 27, 1899, and then on July 28, 1901, they added twin sons, Emmett and Harvey, to their family.

Cockrell writes there was always so much to do. She also helped Wells in the field to head Kaffir corn, “getting as brown as a farmer’s wife should be.”

Her letters over the years detail the hard work necessary to be a pioneer wife and the love that she and her husband had for each other. However, the hard work and the demands of their claim proved too much for her. When their fourth child was to be born, the Salt Fork River was flooding and the doctor could not attend her. She delivered the baby but developed a fever and passed away on July 31, 1901, thus ending her life during the beginning of a new frontier.

The Cherokee Strip Museum is located at 2617 West Fir Avenue in Perry. The hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays. For more information, call 580/336-2405.

Iraq War event

On December 9, the Oklahoma History Center will host two veterans from the Iraq War for different perspectives on the action.

Lieutenant Colonel Steve Russell will present on his experience during the capture of Saddam Hussein. He wrote his account in We Got Him!: A Memoir of the Hunt and Capture of Saddam Hussein.

Sergeant Correy Twilley, an crew chief on a Black Hawk helicopter during the war, will discuss his experience in carrying special operations troops similar to Russell. Twilley also works for OHS as a military historian.

After the event, the Museum Store will have Russell’s book on sale and the author will be signing copies for visitors. For more information, call 405/522-0786 or email jmreed@okhistory.org.

Christmas in the village

Ring in the holiday season with an enchanting evening among the lights on Friday, December 6, from 5 to 8 p.m. at the Cherokee Strip Regional Heritage Center. Activities and tours for the whole family will be held in each of the four beautifully adorned historic buildings. Musical performances will occur throughout the evening in the Humphrey Village Church. Tickets are $5 and available in advance. CSRHC members receive free admission. For more information, call 580/237-1907.

Pawnee Bill Christmas

Pawnee Bill’s historic home will be transformed in the spirit of the holidays with beautiful seasonal decorations. Visitors can tour the home without charge during normal hours of operation on Wednesdays to Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sundays from 1 to 4 p.m. The museum is located at 1141 Pawnee Bill Road in Pawnee. For more information, call 918/762-2513.
Christmas at the Oklahoma History Center

Load up the family and “deck the halls” at the Oklahoma History Center on December 7 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. This family-friendly event will include activities and a chance to meet a variety of different historical Santa and Mrs. Claus. Participants will make their own ornaments and can either take them home or leave them on the OHC community tree. This event is free with admission to the museum. For more information please contact us at education@okhistory.org or 405/522-3602.

Murrell Home living history

The George M. Murrell Home Historic Site in Park Hill is offering a monthly living history program. The 1845 Cherokee plantation home will host a different historical demonstration or activity every third Saturday of the month.

On December 21 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. museum visitors will be able to see period-dressed interpreters performing tasks in a living history capacity. Guests can expect to see a variety of demonstrations and talk to historians while participating in some of the activities. Topics will cover all aspects of Cherokee plantation life from traditional crafts, cooking, and gardening to animal demonstrations, building trades, and cultural activities.

The living history program is for visitors of all ages. Admission to the programs is free, and no reservations are needed. The Murrell Home is located three miles south of Tahlequah at 19479 East Murrell Road in Park Hill. For specific activities each month, like the Murrell Home Road in Park Hill. For more information please contact us at education@okhistory.org or 405/522-3602.

Santa Walk and Santa’s cottage

On December 15 from 2 to 4 p.m. the Frank Phillips Home and the Jane Phillips Society (JPS) invite parents and children to Santa’s cottage, located just to the south of the mansion. Reenactors Brandon and Rachael Reid will portray Santa Claus and Mrs. Claus and will visit with children of all ages. JPS volunteers will serve homemade cookies and punch. Be sure to bring a camera. There is no charge for this event.

The Santa Walk is an event in the mansion that is fun for all ages. Visitors are invited to stroll through the three floors of the home and visit with historic Santa Clauses. This is a juried group of reenactors from around the state who have studied the history of Saint Nicholas and other Christmas legends from around the world dating back to the sixteenth century. Each reenactor has a particular “Santa” that they portray—the most modern being 1907. Children under the age of sixteen must be accompanied by an adult. Admission for the Santa Walk is $5 plus tax for adults and $2 plus tax for children aged eleven and under.

At 3:30 p.m. that afternoon Tuba Christmas will perform on the front porch of the mansion. It is not every day you will see a group of tuba and euphonium players performing holiday classics in a free outdoor concert, and anyone with the right instruments can join in by calling Alex Claussen, band director at the Bartlesville High School.

The tradition started at New York’s Rockefeller Center in 1974, and has played out at two hundred cities around the world. The public is invited to bring a lawn chair and enjoy this beautiful concert. In case of inclement weather, the event will be held at the Bartlesville High School. For further information about the home, call 918/336-2491, ext.103. The Frank Phillips Home is located at 1107 Southeast Cherokee in Bartlesville.

Christmas tours

Escape to a simpler time and experience Christmas in the Cherokee Outlet as it was more than one hundred years ago, with the sights, smells, and sounds of the holiday season. The Cherokee Strip Regional Heritage Center will have group tours from December 1 to 21 that include character-led tours of the beautifully-adorned historic buildings, continental breakfast or dessert, a musical performance, an activity with the schoolmarm, and making an ornament. Lunch tours are also available. For more information, call 580/237-1907.

The Oklahoma History Center announces a new educational traveling trunk, “Oklahomans in Space.” The space trunk is available free of charge to pre-K to twelfth grade teachers and homeschool cooperatives in the state of Oklahoma. The trunk features a curriculum guide that aligns with Oklahoma social studies and science standards. Hands-on items include an astronaut suit and helmet, flight suit, model rockets and capsules, mission patches, and more. It also includes DVDs, children’s books, and curriculum guides courtesy of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA). This interactive, educational activity is generously sponsored by internationally known Oklahoma singer and entertainer Darla Zuhdi.

“Many students are surprised to learn that there are eight astronauts from Oklahoma and that our state plays a leading role in the aerospace industry. Teachers can use the hands-on items in this trunk as both a fun and educational way to engage their students about science and Oklahomans’ important contributions to space exploration,” said Dan Provo, director of the Oklahoma History Center.

The Oklahoma History Center offers more than twenty trunks to teachers on a wide variety of Oklahoma and national history topics. Teachers interested in reserving this or any other trunk should contact the Oklahoma History Center education department at education@okhistory.org or 405/522-3602.

Weaving and spinning at the Pioneer Woman Museum

On December 10 the Pioneer Woman Museum will host a free weaving and spinning demonstration at the museum. This event will also occur on the second Tuesday of each month.

Lorraine McDonagh demonstrates weaving and Joan Galbraith shows spinning. Galbraith recently combed out raw wool that she will spin, and then Lorraine will crochet the wool into a scarf. Follow the progress of the project on Facebook at https://www.facebook.com/PioneerWomanMuseum.

The loom is a Sears and Roebuck weaving loom purchased more than fifty years ago. It is a working forty-five-inch, six-harness loom. Currently Lorraine is working on a plain weave, which she will finish and make into dish towels that the museum will then sell in the gift shop to help support museum operations.

Galbraith has been an OHS volunteer for eight years and McDonagh has been at the museum as a volunteer for eighteen. For more information, call 580/765-6108. The Pioneer Woman Museum is located at 701 Monument Road in Ponca City and open Tuesdays through Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Historic education records roll

The OHS Research Division has digitized teacher’s quarterly reports found in the Dawes Commission records.

The database includes information for more than nine thousand items included in the teacher’s quarterly reports found in the records of the Dawes Commission from 1904 to January 1907. These schools were located in various American Indian nations, but included the names of both tribal citizens and noncitizens.

To search the index, visit the Research Center webpage at http://www.okhistory.org/research/schoolreports. For assistance or to order copies of reports, call 405/522-5225.

Christmas open house at Sod House Museum

When pioneers gathered to celebrate the Christmas holiday there would be music. The Sod House Museum is doing just that on Saturday, December 14, from 1 to 3 p.m. at the “Christmas Open House” with music by Darrel Long.

Fiddle player Darrel Long will be accompanied by guitar players Duane Condreay and Delmer Bowman. Playing the fiddle comes naturally to Long; he started playing the fiddle at the age of nine and has entertained for more than sixty-seven years. “Through the years of playing the fiddle and entertaining, it just gets better,” said Long, because he truly enjoys playing his fiddle. Come and enjoy an afternoon of traditional Christmas music at the museum.

The museum and Sod House will be decorated with traditional pioneer Christmas decorations for visitors to see. The pioneer homes were decorated with natural trimmings that were gathered from outside, and homemade ornaments for the tree were something that the children could create. Although many sod houses and dugouts did not have room for a tree, the children still worked hard months ahead in making decorations for the home and gifts for the family. The pioneer spirit is the gift of giving and continues today.

Come and enjoy an afternoon of Christmas music, along with cookies and spiced cider provided by the Sod House Friends. Admission to the Christmas open house is free as our thank you to everyone for visiting throughout the year along with your continued support. We wish everyone a Merry Christmas.

The Sod House Museum is operated by the Oklahoma Historical Society and located southeast of Aline on State Highway 8. For more information call 580/463-2441 or email sodhouse@okhistory.org.

Christmas at the Fred Drummond Home

The Friends of the Fred Drummond Home are happy to announce that the Christmas event at the home will be Sunday, December 8 between the hours of 2 and 4 p.m. This year Martha Ray and her entourage of Historic Santas will once again be on display at the home and visitors will get a chance to visit and also receive a treat from these wonderful Santas! Also the band Finegan’s Awake will be playing their beautiful Scottish/Celtic folks songs in the parlor for your enjoyment. Visitors will be able to view the home decorated for the holidays. Refreshments will also be provided. What a wonderful way to start the holiday season!

A small admission fee will be taken at the door of $3 for adults, $2.50 for seniors, and $1 for children between the ages of six and eighteen years old. All proceeds will benefit the Drummond Home. The home site is located at 305 North Price in Hominy. For more information, please call 918/885-2374.

Victorian Christmas traditions

On December 11 you are invited to a Brown Bag Lunch and Learn program entitled “Victorian Christmas Traditions” with Martha Ray from noon to 1 p.m. at the Cherokee Strip Regional Heritage Center. The Brown Bag Lunch and Learns are held every second Wednesday of the month at noon at the CSRHC Humphrey Heritage Village Church. The event is free and the start time is noon. For more information visit www.csrhc.org or call 580/237-1907.

“Santas of the World” tour

On Saturday, December 14, the Pawnee Bill Ranch is hosting a “Santas of the World” tour in the mansion from 1 to 3 p.m. following the Friends of the Pawnee Bill Ranch Association annual meal and meeting. There will be Santas representing countries all over the world and from many different historic time periods. For more information, call 918/762-2513.
