Tracing Our Roots: Oklahoma's Historical Black Towns Tour

The Langston University Marching and Jazz Band will perform at the Oklahoma History Center on Saturday, February 4, 2012, at 6:00 p.m. The Langston University Department of Music and the Oklahoma Historical Society are partnering to present Tracing Our Roots: Oklahoma's Historically Black Towns Tour. This is a ninety-minute black history program that will travel throughout the state.

The program will feature music performed under the direction of the Langston University Band Director Larry Birden, Jr. Also, the history presentation by Bruce Fisher will trace the migration of African Americans to Oklahoma and the social and political climate that led to the establishment of historically all-black towns.

Rare film footage of rural black communities in the late 1920s from the OHS Currie Ballard Collection will be shown. The film footage was originally shot by the Reverend Solomon Sir Jones of Muskogee from 1924 to

Langston University Band

1929. Oklahoma historian Currie Ballard recently discovered the film. In November 2011 a Yale University archivist showed footage of the historic film at the Association of Moving Images Archivist Conference. Other than Yale University, the Oklahoma Historical Society is the only institution that owns this vintage film footage.

The statewide tour of this performance will resume on February 15, 2012, and end February 19, 2012. Langston University students will visit Tatum, Taft, Redbird, Rentiesville, Boley, Booksville, and Clearview. Performances are planned for Muskogee, Boley, Ardmore, and Shawnee.

For additional information, email Bruce Fisher at brucefisher@okhistory.org or Larry Birden, Jr., at labirden@lunet.edu.

In memoriam: James O. "Jim" Kemm

James "Jim" Kemm, a former president of the Oklahoma Historical Society, died on November 23, 2011, at the age of 90. Jim was a freelance writer who had a lengthy career in public relations, trade association management, and journalism.

Jim held the offices of president and vice president of the Oklahoma Historical Society during his eighteen years of service on the OHS Board of Directors. In 2007 he retired as treasurer and was named Board Director Emeritus.

Jim was born on May 6, 1921, in Springfield, Missouri, one of four children of Oswald and Vivian (Baldridge) Kemm. He served during World War II as a cryptographer with the U.S. Army in Alaska and the Aleutians. Following the war he attended the University of Missouri in Columbia where he met and married Betty Ann Harner. During their sixty-four-year marriage they raised three daughters, traveled extensively, and relaxed at their cabin in Missouri. Jim loved history, art, singing, fishing, and watching Mizzou Tigers teams.

A graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, he was assistant professor of journalism at Rider College in New Jersey, then worked on the editorial staff of the Springfield, Missouri, newspaper. He was executive manager of the Oklahoma Petroleum Council until it merged into the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association of Oklahoma in 1982 with Jim becoming its executive vice president of public relations. He retired in 1983.

Jim was the author of a number of publications, including Rupert Hughes: A Hollywood Legend (1997) and Tulsa, Oil Capital of the World (2004). He also owned an extensive collection of vintage Oklahoma oil postcards and a number of historic photographic images of oil fields.

A civic leader, Jim was a member of many organizations including the Public Relations Society of America and the Tulsa Society of Association Executives, which he helped found. Jim received numerous professional honors including the national Award of Merit for Management Achievement from the American Society of Association Executives.

His extensive public service included appointment as chairman of the Governor's Council on Tourist Development by Governor Henry Bellmon. Jim also was named vice chairman of a similar advisory group by Governor Dewey Bartlett.

Jim is survived by his wife, three daughters, eight grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren. The family suggests memorial contributions be made to the Oklahoma Historical Society, 800 Nazih Zuhdi Drive, Oklahoma City, OK 73105 or to the Tulsa Conservation Foundation, 5401 South Sheridan Road, Suite 201, Tulsa, OK 74154.

Director's Column

By Bob L. Blackburn Executive Director

In the world of public history, we are always searching for ways to connect with people who will use our resources, read our books, attend our events, or view our exhibits.

We reach out to educators, students, genealogists, historians, tourists, and anyone who is curious about state and local history. The million dollar question is—how do we appeal to the greatest number of people as we collect, preserve, and share the story?

After thirty-two years at the Oklahoma Historical Society, I believe one of the best tools at our disposal is shared memory.

Shared memory does not have to be recent events. It can be the memory of ancestors who fought in the Civil War. It can be the memory of values and lessons learned in church, on a farm, or in a small town.

Whatever the memory, it can bind us together into a family, a band of brothers and sisters, or a community. The result is a greater sense of belonging to something that is greater than ourselves.

A new project recently funded by a $250,000 grant from the Inasmuch Foundation is a great example of how to use shared memory to attract a crowd. It is a museum exhibit called Oklahoma @ the Movies, scheduled to open at the Oklahoma History Center in May 2012.

Everyone, without exception, can tell a story about the movies.

It might be the memory of the first time they saw a movie. In my case it was taking the Santa Fe train from Edmond to downtown Oklahoma City to see Bambi. Or it might be the memory of an exceptional movie that tugged at their emotions. In my case, that is a long list.

In our exhibit we will tie those memories to the broader picture of Oklahoma history.

We will feature the business of the movie industry, from the design and management of theaters to the marketing and making of movies in the state. We will connect the movie stars and artists behind the camera to their roots in Oklahoma and the people and institutions that inspired them to pursue their art. We also will expand on the topic of Oklahoma's image in the movies, contrasting myth and reality to show how state history has been shaped in large part by what is seen on the silver screen.

Yes, we are always searching for ways to connect with people. Shared memory will help us create new memories.

Development News

By Paul F. Lambert

A new e-newsletter soon will be sent to all OHS members who have submitted their email addresses to us. It will be available as a result of our Development Office working with Crescendo Interactive to develop our new planned giving website. The weekly enewsletter will provide the most current news from Washington, D.C., and will feature sections on Savvy Living and Personal Planning, gift stories, finance news, and timely articles. If you decide after receiving an issue or two that you do not want to receive future issues, just click on the appropriate tab at the end of an issue and you will be removed from that list.

Typical of subjects covered in the Personal Planning section of the e-letter include "Wills - Good and Bad," "Wills - Perils of Probate," "Social Security," "Married Couples and Property," and IRA and 401K - "Designated Beneficiary Options." Savvy Living articles provide information on subjects such as how to find a good contractor or handyman, fire safety tips, or how to select the best Medicare prescription plan for you. Financial news each week will give updates on stocks, bonds, CDs, and mortgages. Many articles from these sections will be archived and accessible to newsletter recipients.

On another matter, we have been conducting a massive membership campaign. One of the lists of potential members we used was processed incorrectly which resulted in letters with odd-looking names, i. e. zip codes included with names in the addresses, to be sent. This caused the computer not to recognize duplications between people on the list and our existing members. This was handled by a contractor who sent the letters without first informing us of this problem! The computer also failed to catch some duplications on other lists for various reasons. While it is necessary for us to conduct campaigns of this scale to grow our membership, we apologize to any members who may have received a letter inviting them to join.

AROUND SELAHOMA

Meetings

The Oklahoma Genealogical Society will hold its regular monthly meeting on Monday, January 2, at 6 p.m. at the Oklahoma History Center in Oklahoma City. The topic of this month's meeting will be "Preserving Family Legends." Carolyn Steele from Tulsa will be combining her knowledge of storytelling and genealogy to inspire others to write their family stories and bring their ancestors to life. Steele's work includes her study of genealogy and history to create short stories. She wrote "Something for Melba" about her Alaskan grandfather; "The Bride," the story of her mail-order-bride grandmother; and "The Rescue," which tells of the frozen wilderness in Alaska.

Events

Travel to Muskogee from January 13 to 15 for the Martin Luther King Soul Food Cook-Off and feast on delicious soul food dishes such as sweet potato pie, smothered chicken and rice, homemade macaroni and cheese, mustard greens, and hot water cornbread. Walk through the different booths with various soul foods and taste the creations of local cooks. The event features the different cooks competing in different categories to create the best dishes. Attendees will vote for their favorites, and judges will award the grand prize. This event is family friendly and will provide fun and full stomachs. In addition to food, the Muscogee Civic Center is also holding a Blues Review on Friday at 7 p.m. and a gospel show on Sunday, January 15, at 6 p.m. (travelok.com)

Enjoy U.S. military history? See it in action at the Airborne Demonstration Team Open Hangar Day in Frederick on January 28. Visit the historic Frederick Army Airfield section of the Frederick Regional Airport for a day of aviation, along with military displays, living history, ground and air vehicles, and combat equipment. In the morning the World War II Airborne Demonstration Team will showcase skills learned in jump school through authentic World War II-era training. Watch the team jumpers as they make parachute jumps from a World War II-style C-47 aircraft. The event occurs from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Frederick Regional Airport. For more information call 580/335-2126 or 580/335-3344. (travelok.com)

For those who enjoy the outdoors and wildlife, travel to the Quartz Mountain Nature Park in Lone Wolf on January 21 or 22 for the In Search of Eagles event. Eagles usually arrive at Quartz Mountain near the end of December and stay until March. Eagles can be seen flying to and from their roosting areas. Join the park naturalist for an informative eagle presentation at the Group Camp Community Building, located across from the Quartz Mountain grocery store and caravan to eagle viewing locations around Lake Altus-Lugert. Children must be accompanied by an adult, and inclement weather will cancel the event. For additional dates or information, call 580/563-2238 or 405/319-8380.

Exhibits

Will James: The Hays Collection opens at the National Cowboy & Western Heritage Museum in Oklahoma City December 9 and will be on display until October 14, 2012, in the Eldridge Gallery. The exhibition brings together many works of art and memorabilia of renowned western artist and author Will James. For more information, call 405/478-2250.

The new history museum in Temple illustrates the historical B & O Cash Store, once the third largest department store in the state. Started by Bob and Otho Mooney with borrowed money, the store was so successful Sears and Roebuck bought out the Mooneys in 1929. For this story and the town's history, Temple's new museum contains photographs, family histories, and artifacts. The museum is open on Saturdays from 1:30 to 5 p.m. and by calling at 580/342-6930. For more information email powgraz@pldi.net

After the discovery of the first photograph of Edmond Burdick, the namesake of Edmond, the Edmond Historical Society has announced a new exhibit. To view the photograph and other previously unkown details about Burdick, the Edmond Historical Society created a new exhibit, I Was Lonesome, Awful Lonesome: Niners and Pioneers of Edmond. The society also recently renovated its American Indian exhibit, As Long as Grass Grows: Native Histories. The Edmond Historical Society and Museum is open Tuesday through Friday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Admission is free and the museum is located at 431 S. Boulevard in Edmond. The 1889 Territorial School is open the first two Saturdays of each month from 1 to 4 p.m.

For more information, contact 405/340-0078 or www.edmondhistory.org.

Opportunities

The Carl Albert Congressional Research and Studies Center at the University of Oklahoma in Norman is seeking applicants for its Visiting Scholars Program, which provides financial assistance to researchers working at the center's archives. Awards of $500-$1,000 are normally granted as reimbursement for travel and lodging. The center's holdings include the papers of many former members of Congress from Oklahoma as well as documents pertaining to public policy affecting agriculture, American Indian affairs, energy, foreign affairs, and the economy. A description of the collections can be found at www.ou.edu/special/ albertctr/archives/. Graduate students researching for a publication, thesis, or dissertation are encouraged to apply. Professional researchers and writers are also invited to apply. There is no standardized application, but each applicant should submit 1) a research proposal of no more than one thousand words; 2) a personal vita; 3) an explanation of how the Carl Albert Center's resources will aid the researcher; 4) a budget proposal; and 5) a recommendation letter from an established scholar in the researcher's discipline attesting to the significance of the research. Applications are accepted anytime. For more information, please contact Archivist, Carl Albert Center, 630 Parrington Oval, Room 101, University of Oklahoma, Norman, OK 73019. For more information, call 405/325-5835 or email channeman@ou.edu.

Do you want to have your organization's meeting, event, or exhibit featured in the "Around Oklahoma" section of the Mistletoe Leaves? The "Around Oklahoma" section features Oklahoma history and heritage-related activities or programs sponsored by entities other than the Oklahoma Historical Society. To submit news items, please contact Tabatha Toney, assistant editor by email at ttoney@okhistory.org or mail at 800 Nazih Zuhdi Drive, Oklahoma City, OK 73105, during the first week of the month before you wish a news items to appear. For example, if you wish a news item to appear in our February issue, please send it to our editors by the first week of January. Thank you for your submissions.

OHS ACTIVITIES AND EXHIBITS

Every effort has been made to list correct information as available. Other events may be added throughout the year. Check the monthly issues of Mistletoes Leaves for addition, corrections, and expanded articles.

Some events require registration or admission fees. Registration is limited for some workshops and seminars. Some events sponsored by the OHS are held at sites rather than at the property on which the OHS office or museum is located.

Please visit the OHS website, www.okhistory.org, to verify dates, hours, exact location, admission fees, and other relevant information.

Pearl Harbor exhibit opened at the Oklahoma History Center

The Oklahoma History Center is celebrating the seventieth anniversary of the bombing of Pearl Harbor with an exhibit that opened on December 7: "Oklahoma and the Day That Will Live in Infamy: Remembering Pearl Harbor." Although no Japanese airplanes bombed the state of Oklahoma, many Oklahomans experienced the devastation those planes unleashed on Pearl Harbor. With this new exhibit, the OHC hopes to tell important stories so that succeeding generations will remember the bravery and lives lost at Pearl Harbor.

Some of the artifacts on display include a Japanese flight suit and naval uniforms, artifacts from aboard the USS Oklahoma during the attack at Pearl Harbor, and letters from a bereaved mother to her son who she would never see again. The exhibit will also feature several interviews with veterans of Pearl Harbor, Wake Island, and the Philippines.

Oklahoma History Center call for volunteers

Volunteers are vitally important for the services they provide to the Oklahoma History Center. They give tours, are greeters and gallery hosts, assist kids in making tie dyed bandanas at September Fest, are door monitors for History Day, welcome patrons at exhibit openings, and are coat checkers at dozens of holiday parties. In 2010 they enjoyed field trips to the Chickasaw Cultural Center and to see Passages at the Oklahoma City Museum of Art. They hear scholarly lecturers at monthly meetings and at Brown Bag lunches. Without volunteers the History Center would not be as great as it is, and they are to be thanked for their service!

If you or someone you know is interested in becoming a volunteer at the Oklahoma History Center, please contact Robbin Davis at volunteers@okhistory.org or 405/522-0745. The next new volunteer training classes are scheduled for April 9-13. More information and an application to the program can be found at www. okhistorycenter.org under "Volunteers."

Museum Store News

by Russ Haynes

Happy New Year! I hope everyone had a great holiday season. I want to say "Thanks" to everyone who shopped in the Museum Store during November and December. Your patronage is greatly appreciated. We have added a lot of new merchandise over the last few months, and you will be seeing some of it in the OHS Extra! e-newsletter. We are always on the lookout for new books and here are some I hope you will enjoy.

Stories of Old-Time Oklahoma by David Dairy. Includes revised and expanded stories of Oklahoma's history that first appeared as newspaper articles during the state centennial in 2007. Begins with an overview of Oklahoma's rich and varied history and geography and then introduces readers to its people, including Indian leaders Quanah Parker and Satanta; lawmen Bass Reeves and Bill Tilghman; artists Woody Guthrie, Will Rogers, and Gene Autry; and many, many more. 271 pages. Hardback. $24.95

Acrocanthosaurus: The Bones of Contention by Russell Ferrell. Tells the true story of Cephis Hall and Sid Love and how they found massive a dinosaur femur bone in the spring of 1983 in a waste-holding pit near the edge of the Mountain Fork River. Blends science, history, politics, and controversy into an amazing and heroic account of their struggles and triumphs against overwhelming odds. 448 pages. Paperback. $19.95

Black Officer in a Buffalo Soldier Regiment: The Military Career of Charles Young by Brian G. Shellum. Tells the story of the third black graduate of West Point, the first African American national park superintendent, the first black U.S military attaché, the first African American officer to command a regular army regiment, and the highest-ranking black officer in the regular army at the time of his death. Describes how during his remarkable army career Young was shuffled among the few assignments deemed suitable for a black officer in a white man's army—the Buffalo Soldier regiments, an African American college, and diplomatic posts in predominantly black republics such as Liberia. 360 pages. Paperback. $19.95

Wishbone: Oklahoma Football, 1959-1985 by Wann Smith. Provides an in-depth account of Sooner football from the team's final years under Bud Wilkinson through its remarkable turnaround under Coach Barry Switzer. At the heart of the story is the phenomenal success of the wishbone offense, a hybrid offshoot of the split-t formation that Wilkinson employed so successfully in the 1950s. Draws on firsthand accounts from coaches, players, and university administrators, many of which were never before published. 329 pages. Hardback. $24.95.
