New Oklahoma National Register Listings

The State Historic Preservation Office is pleased to announce six new National Register of Historic Places listings. The National Register of Historic Places is our nation’s official list of properties significant in our past.

The Meloy House, at 131 West Carson Drive, is located in Mustang. It is an excellent example of a first-generation house in Canadian County, representing the earliest settlement in the area. While the original downtown area of Mustang is nonextant and many of the surrounding houses are no longer extant, the Meloy House has been saved from demolition. It was first occupied by Dr. R. C. Meloy and the minimal changes to the building reflect very few owners over time.

The Depew Route 66 segment is located west of downtown Depew in Creek County. This segment was constructed in 1925, designated as US 66 in 1926, and remained so until the newly constructed, straighter alignment of US 66 bypassed this curving road segment. This segment is significant as it reflects the changes in transportation technology and social trends evident in the changing traffic patterns on US Highway 66. It is also significant as a good example of road construction reflecting technological advances of its time, typical of US 66 in Oklahoma in the 1920s.

The Kelley Club, at 2300 North Kelley Avenue, is located in north central Oklahoma City. The building is significant for its association with Alcoholics Anonymous (AA), the group whose mission is to assist alcoholics in finding and maintaining sobriety. Through its Twelve Step program, AA has enabled, and continues to enable, Oklahomans to achieve and sustain permanent sobriety. The Kelley Club had, and still has, a significant impact on the residents of Oklahoma City as well as the treatment and understanding of alcoholism.

The Oklahoma City Ford Motor Company Assembly Plant in downtown Oklahoma City is an excellent example of a manufacturing facility designed specifically for the assembly of automobiles through a process pioneered by the Ford Motor Company. Famed industrial architect Albert Kahn designed the original building for Ford in 1915 and its expansion in 1924. The building retains character-defining features of the automobile manufacturing facility: long open floor plan, large expanses of windows for light, and ventilation, and Kahn’s signature octagonal concrete columns with splayed capitals.

Long Branch Creek Bridge is located in northwestern Payne County in the vicinity of Stillwater. Constructed in 1910, this Pratt Half-Hip Pony Truss, in its heyday, was one of the most common bridge types used in rural America. Today it is one of two remaining Pratt Half-Hip Truss bridges in Payne County.

The Waynoka Telephone Exchange Building, located on Main Street in Waynoka, is significant in the area of Architecture as it is the only Art Deco-style building in Waynoka. It is also significant for its telephone-related function in Waynoka as the only remaining example representing technological expansion and corporate consolidation in the development of telephone services for the residents of the community.

Listing in the National Register is an honorific designation that provides recognition, limited protection, and, in some cases, financial incentives for these important properties. The SHPO identifies, evaluates, and nominates properties for this special designation. For detailed information, please contact Lynda Ozan at 405-522-4478 or email lozan@okhistory.org.

History, like any good book or movie, is most compelling when there is dramatic tension. Sometimes that drama is created by a suspenseful challenge. At other times the pivot point is a surprising opportunity.

The forthcoming museum exhibit, Crossroads of Commerce: A History of Free Enterprise in Oklahoma, will use that dramatic tension to set the stage for the stories of entrepreneurs who had decisions to make, ranging from business plans and capitalization to production and marketing. No matter the time or place, Oklahomans have had to confront challenges and seize opportunities by committing to action.

Some stories are shrouded in the mists of time, such as the palisaded trading posts built by the Wichitas in the 1720s to trade with the French out of New Orleans and the Southern Plains tribes to the west. Advancing that frontier story will be an exhibit on Robert M. Jones, a Choctaw businessman known as “the richest man west of Natchez” in the 1850s.

Some stories rooted in the soil of Oklahoma will trigger shared memories, such as Wilson meats, TG&Y, C. R. Anthony’s, Braniff Airlines, Chicken-in-the-Rough, and OTASCO. Others will feature companies that are still making history, such as Sonic, Love’s, QuikTrip, Kimray, Ditch Witch, Chickasaw Enterprises, and the Oklahoma City Thunder.

We will connect the dots of cultural legacies, individual creativity, and entrepreneurial courage to profile American Indian artists Kelly Haney, Ben Harjo, and Mike Larsen, who gave up their day jobs in the 1970s to commit their careers to creating great art. We will connect the dots of Italian immigration, coal mining, and entrepreneurial courage to trace four generations of the Prichard family who have made Pete’s Place a landmark in Krebs.

Banking and capital formation will be a major theme through all of the stories, with individual banks and bankers placed on the stage of history at key times and places to help entrepreneurs start, grow, and sustain businesses.

This is an ambitious plan with its own creative tension. The state provides no funding for exhibits or collections, so we will have to raise the money and seek partners to do justice to the entrepreneurial spirit that has built Oklahoma’s economy and contributed so much to our quality of life. And we will stretch the staff and ask them to do more as we collect, preserve, and share great stories.

Yes, history is most compelling when there is dramatic tension. Opening this exhibit in November 2015 will pose challenges and open doors of opportunity. Now is the time to take a chance and invest in an enterprise that will generate healthy returns.

Exhibits

Visit the Edmond Historical Society and Museum as they present The Edmond Sun: Connecting our Community 1889-2014. This exhibit represents twenty-five years of community news and reporting by the Edmond Sun with an impressive collection of newspapers, cameras, and artifacts that illuminate the workings of this hometown newspaper. It is on display through December 20, 2014. The Edmond Historical Society and Museum is open Tuesday through Friday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday 1 to 4 p.m. Admission is free. The museum is located at 431 South Boulevard in Edmond. For more information about exhibits and programs call 405-340-0078 or visit www.edmondhistory.org.

Events

Learn about the world of cotton farming at the annual Cotton Festival in Frederick on Saturday, November 1, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Visitors to this event will enjoy educational displays, spinning and weaving demonstrations, crafts, children’s games, and antique farm equipment. The grounds will feature live entertainment, food vendors, and a chili cook-off. View exhibits about cotton farming in the early twentieth century and take a tour of a local cotton gin. Activities will be held on the Tillman County Courthouse lawn, located at Highway 183 and Highway 5. For more information, please call 580-335-2126.

The National Weather Center in Norman will host the annual National Weather Festival on Saturday, November 1, from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. This three-day rendezvous will take place Thursday, November 6, through Saturday, November 8, approximately five miles west of Okmulgee on Highway 56. The event runs from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. each day. Visitors will witness demonstrations of blacksmithing, hawk and knife throwing, archery, black powder shooting, flint and steel fire-starting, leather crafting, and more. Many living history interpreters will be on hand portraying trappers, traders, mountain men, and American Indians from the 1800s. This event also features music, food, educational displays, souvenirs, and fun for all ages. Dripping Springs State Park is located at 16830 Dripping Springs Road in Okmulgee. Please call 918-785-5971 for more information.

Spend Friday, November 7, and Saturday, November 8, at the Euchee/Yuchi Heritage Festival in Kellyville. The festival will take place at the Creek County Fairgrounds where attendees will enjoy a Euchee language play, flute music by Randy Kemp, bingo, and a traditional meal. Saturday’s events include traditional church hymn singing, a horseshoe tournament, fancy dancing by Mike Pazhetopah, bow shooting, a silent auction, and a stomp dance. Vendor booths and live demonstrations of traditional American Indian crafts will also be available for visitors. The Creek County Fairgrounds are located at 17806 West Highway 66 in Kellyville. For more information, please call 918-695-0195.

Celebrate the birthday of Oklahoma’s favorite son, Will Rogers, by attending a variety of festivities taking place Saturday, November 1, through Tuesday, November 4, in Claremore. Will Rogers Days celebrates the November 4, 1879, birth of Will Rogers with activities such as a wreath-laying ceremony, a theater production, children’s activities, and a special presentation held by champion trick roper Kowboy Kal. Don’t miss the kick-off parade through downtown Claremore on Saturday, November 1, at 10 a.m. Enjoy the decorated parade floats, marching bands, show horses, Shriners, and more as they make their way down Will Rogers Boulevard. The Will Rogers Memorial Museum is located at 1720 West Will Rogers Boulevard. Some events are held at Dog Iron Ranch, located at 9501 East 380 Road in Oologah. Please call 918-343-8113 for more information.

Step back in time to the 1830s and see history come alive at the Dripping Springs Rendezvous in Dripping Springs State Park. This event features hourly weather balloon launches, children’s activities, storm research vehicle displays, amateur radio demonstrations, and weather-related information and products. Visitors can also view the National Weather Center’s premier facilities during the festival. The event will take place at 120 David L. Boren Boulevard in Norman. Call 405-325-6933 for more information.

Ring in the holiday season at the Rock Island 905 Museum in Duncan on Saturday, November 29, at 7 p.m. Enjoy the museum’s holiday decor, hot chocolate, cookies, and music. The 905 train’s bell will start ringing at 7 p.m. and the locomotive will be lit for the first time in the 2014 season. Bring the entire family and even meet Santa Claus in the caboose. The Rock Island 905 Museum is located at 314 North Fourteenth Street in Duncan. Please call 580-252-2182 for more information.

Experience the World’s Oldest Free Fly-In and Air Show in Fairview on Saturday, November 8, at the Fairview Municipal Airport. The sixty-third annual air show features displays of antique, experimental, and classic aircrafts, a parachute jump, and aerobatics. Free breakfast will be served for all who fly in from 7 to 10 a.m. A veteran’s ceremony will begin at 10:45 a.m. and the high-flying air show will begin at 12:30 p.m. This event is free and open to the public. For more information, please call 580-227-3788.

Help support the Edmond Historical Society and Museum at the annual Wine Through Time fundraiser. This year’s honorary chairs, Ron and Beth Decker, invite you to join in the fun on Thursday, November 13, from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at the museum in Edmond. The festivities will include sixteen different wines from Premium Brands Wine and Spirits, gourmet tastings provided by local restaurants, entertainment by DJ Mark Burney, and silent and live auctions. At the end of the evening guests will take home a complimentary wine glass. Ticket pricing is $50 and up. The Edmond Historical Society and Museum is located at 431 South Boulevard in Edmond. To purchase tickets or sponsor the event, please call 405-340-0078.

Do you want your organization’s meeting, event, or exhibit included in the “Around Oklahoma” section of the Mistletoe Leaves? The “Around Oklahoma” section features Oklahoma history and heritage-related activities or programs sponsored by entities other than the Oklahoma Historical Society. To submit news items, please contact Elizabeth Bass, editor, by email at ebass@okhistory.org or by mail at 800 Nazih Zuhdi Drive, Oklahoma City, OK 73105, during the first week of the month before you wish a news item to appear. For example, if you wish an item to appear in the December issue, you must submit by the first week of November.
Oktoberfest Events a success for Pioneer Woman Museum and Marland Mansion

The Pioneer Woman Museum joined the Marland Mansion in celebrating Oktoberfest on Saturday, October 4, and Sunday, October 5, by hosting various pioneer learning experiences on the Pioneer Woman Museum lawn. Hands-on activities included traditional crafts, spinning by Joan Galbraith, weaving by Lorraine McDonagh and Kathy Carter, tatting by Bonny Galbraith, and candle making by Thomas Galbraith. Attendees enjoyed a variety of activities both days. There were demonstrations of rope making by OHS employee Keith Rohlman and pioneer laundry by OHS employee Rachel Kellum. Kellum assisted visitors as they tried their hand at doing laundry with a washtub and washboard.

Blacksmiths from the Saltfork Craftsmen Artist-Blacksmith Association, Inc., showed families their skills. Volunteers Jim Carothers, Tom Nelson and Charlie Mertz demonstrated blacksmithing techniques as they created functional items from hot metal. More information about this organization can be found at www.saltforkcraftsmen.org.

Oktoberfest events at the Pioneer Woman Museum were in partnership with the E. W. Marland Estate Foundation. The Marland Mansion’s Oktoberfest event is held annually on the first weekend of October. Pioneer Woman Museum Director Robbin Davis extends many thanks to the staff and volunteers who made Oktoberfest at the Pioneer Woman Museum a great success.

Oklahoma National History Day takes off

What is Oklahoma National History Day (OkNHD)? It is a great way to engage students and connect them with the past. It is also a big part of what the Oklahoma History Center education staff does. Over the past several years the program has grown by leaps and bounds, spreading to elementary, middle, and high school campuses across the state. Since school started in August, OHC staff have provided dozens of workshops for thousands of students and implemented the first Oklahoma History Day Institute for teachers and youth. Partnering with universities across Oklahoma, OkNHD is on the move reaching out to urban and rural students in schools of all sizes, helping students research the past and develop projects including papers, exhibits, websites, documentaries, and performances. Once projects are completed in the spring, students travel to universities and colleges across the state to present their work to historians, professors, and museum professionals. Winners of these regional competitions then advance to the state finals at the Oklahoma History Center in May.

Why is this important to you? OkNHD helps students develop skills that will make them college and career ready and creates engaged citizens. Because of the tremendous growth in the program, the coordinators need your help. We are beginning our annual fundraising campaign for OkNHD and making a simple challenge: consider skipping a coffee or a coke for a week and make a $10 donation to help sponsor a student. Help the education staff reach its goal of providing scholarships to every History Day student this year. To find out more about OkNHD, visit www.okhistory.org/historyday or call 405-522-0785.

Oklahomans and Space

For those who may have missed the OHS documentary series Oklahomans and Space that played over the summer on OETA, there will be a second chance to watch it in November. OETA will air the entire series during the daytime for student and teacher viewing, so you may have to set your DVR to record it.

Program #1 – November 10 – 1 p.m.
Program #2 – November 11 – 1 p.m.
Program #3 – November 12 – 1 p.m.
Program #4 – November 13 – 1 p.m.
Program #5 – November 14 – 1 p.m.
Program #6 – November 17 – 1 p.m.
Program #7 – November 18 – 1 p.m.
Extra Program – November 19 – 1 p.m.

Please note that the first six programs are sixty minutes in length. Program number seven is ninety minutes long and the extra program titled “The Oklahoma Influence” is thirty minutes in length. For more info on the series, go to www.okhistory.org/general/space.
Pioneer Woman Museum hosts
Gifts From Your Kitchen workshop

On Tuesday, November 11, the Pioneer Woman Museum is hosting a workshop with an opportunity for hands-on learning. The Gifts From Your Kitchen workshop will allow participants to work with others and create many gifts for the upcoming holiday season. It starts at 11 a.m. and provides an opportunity for adults to learn about the benefits of making gifts from their kitchens, including marshmallow stir sticks, sugar scrub, milk bath, and a barbecue rub. Participants can take their handmade gifts home and will receive a booklet including seventy recipe ideas.

Registration is due by November 3, and the cost is $20 per person, which will cover all materials for the day. To register or receive additional information, please call Robin Davis at 580-765-6108 or Lindsay Grace at 580-362-3194.

This workshop is made possible in part by the Oklahoma State University Cooperative Extension Service. The Cooperative Extension Service offers its programs to all eligible persons regardless of race, color, national origin, religion, gender, age, disability, or status as a veteran and is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

The Pioneer Woman Museum is located at 701 Monument Road in Ponca City. The hours of operation are Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Admission is $4 for adults, $3 for seniors, $1 for children ages six to eighteen, and children under six are free. For more information, please call 580-765-6108 or email piown@okhistory.org.

Museum Store News
By Jera Winters

The Oklahoma History Center Museum Store is proud to showcase the history of Oklahoma and beyond, including the state’s role in the shaping of the United States. From the expansion to the West, to how our state’s shape impacts the shape of the U.S., to Oklahomans that have shaped sports history, Oklahoma is a vital part of the American experience. We are happy to offer fascinating new books on Oklahoma and America.

How the States Got Their Shapes by Mark Stein.

Playwright and screenwriter Stein compiles the story of each state’s border, channeling them into a cohesive whole. Proceeding through the states alphabetically, Stein takes the innovative step of addressing each border—north, south, east, and west—separately. The price of the book is $22.99, and is available to members for $19.54.

The Last Boy: Mickey Mantle by Jane Leavy. In The Last Boy, Leavy plumbs the depths of the complex athlete, using copious first-hand research, as well as her own memories, to show why The Mick remains the most beloved and misunderstood Yankee slugger of all time. The book is priced at $27.99, and available to members for $23.79.

Stop by and visit us for these and many other unique products. Members always receive a discount of 15 percent on Museum Store purchases. Please contact us at 405-522-5214 with questions about these or any other of our great items.

2014 OMA awards presented

The Oklahoma Museums Association (OMA) presented awards to OHS museums on Friday, September 25. Oklahoma History Center Director Dan Provo was awarded the Laura McDonagh Streich Award for Service to the Profession, and Diana Collinsworth earned a Certificate of Recognition for her volunteer service. The History Center’s exhibit Steamboat Heroine won the award for best exhibit with a budget of $15,001 and over. The Oklahoma Territorial Museum’s exhibit The Life & Death of an American Outlaw: The Story of Elmer McCurdy won the award for best exhibit with a budget of $0-$5,000. OTM also took home an award for best publication for its Osage Hills Detective Stories.

The Cherokee Strip Regional Heritage Center was awarded best outreach or education program with a budget $0–$5,000 for their program Pioneer Life: Homesteading the Cherokee Outlet.

Situated in far southeastern Choctaw County, Fort Towson is one of five military sites operated by the Oklahoma Historical Society. The fort served intermittently as an important frontier bastion from 1824 to 1865. Named for Colonel Nathan Towson, a hero of the War of 1812, the site was originally known as Cantonment Towson when Colonel Matthew Arbuckle and two companies of men of the Seventh Infantry cleared the area for a small garrison in May 1824. For five years the soldiers tried to remove settlers who believed the area was part of Miller County, Arkansas. The troops also constructed roads to connect the site with Fort Smith, Arkansas, and Fort Jesup, Louisiana. Considered unsuccessful, the post was abandoned in June 1829, and Miller county settlers burned it to the ground.

In preparation for the removal of the Choctaws from the southeastern part of the United States to Indian Territory, the post was reopened on the same site in November 1831. On February 8, 1832, it was designated as Fort Towson. In addition to serving as a terminal point for the Choctaw removal, the fort was a staging area for troops during the Mexican War (1846-48). The site was again abandoned in 1854 only to be resurrected during the Civil War (1861-65). On June 23, 1865, Cherokee Brigadier General Stand Watie surrendered nearby to the army at Doaksville.

A visitor center and period sutler’s store are open to the public. The Oklahoma Historical Society acquired the property in 1960, and Fort Towson was added to the National Register of Historic Places in 1970 (NR 70000531). Those interested in learning more about the fort should consult “Bulwark of the American Frontier: A History of Fort Towson,” by Patrick B. McGuigan, in Early Military Forts and Posts in Oklahoma, edited by Odie B. Faulk, Kenny A. Franks, and Paul F. Lambert. Published by the Oklahoma Historical Society in 1978, the work is currently out of print, so consult your local public or university library for a copy.

CSRHC Fall Lecture Series continues in Enid

The Cherokee Strip Regional Heritage Center (CSRHC) in Enid will host two additional installments of the Fall Lecture Series. This year’s theme is “Surviving the Ebb and Flow of Water in the West.” All lectures are free and open to the public.

On November 3 at 7 p.m. the topic will be “Conservation Born out of Crisis” with Clay Pope, executive director of the Oklahoma Association of Conservation Districts.

On November 10 at 7 p.m. the topic will be “Issues Today for Water Tomorrow” with J. D. Strong, executive director of the Oklahoma Water Resources Board.

All lectures will be held at the Gantz Center on the Enid Campus of Northern Oklahoma College at 7 p.m.

For more information, please call 580-237-1907. The CSRHC is located at 507 South Fourth Street in Enid.

Call for papers for 2015 Oklahoma History Conference

The Oklahoma Historical Society is seeking papers and presentations for the 2015 OHS Annual Oklahoma History Conference, which will be held April 22, 23, and 24, 2015, at the Artesian Hotel in Sulphur, Oklahoma. A total of ten presentation sessions will be held on the mornings of Thursday, April 23, and Friday, April 24. Each session will feature either two or three presentations.

The theme for the conference is “Land, Wood, and Water: Natural Resources and the Course of Oklahoma History.” The history and culture of the state of Oklahoma from the prehistoric era to the present have been shaped by the area’s natural environment. Settlement patterns, business and economic development, cultural diversity, and quality of life issues all were influenced by land, wood, and water. A small sample of the wide range of topics that could be relevant to this theme includes agriculture; transition of public lands to private property; extraction of oil, gas, coal, and other underground resources; transportation; conservation; forest industry; banking; tourism; establishment of communities and lifestyles; and businesses relating directly or indirectly to natural resources.

Presentations should be limited to twenty or thirty minutes in length, depending on the number of participants in each session. One-page proposals should include the title of the presentation; a one-hundred-word description of the presentation; the name, address, phone number, and email address of the presenter; and a short curriculum vitae or brief biographical sketch. Those who submit proposals will be notified of their status by early February 2015 if not earlier. Registration fees for program participants will be waived.

Presentation proposals are being accepted now. The deadline for submitting presentation proposals is Wednesday, December 31, 2014. Proposals should be sent to Annual Conference Committee, Attn: Paul Lambert, Oklahoma Historical Society, 800 Nazih Zuhdi Drive, Oklahoma City, OK 73105. Proposals also may be emailed to Paul Lambert at plambert@okhistory.org. Please call 405-522-5217 with any questions.

Ancestry Day in Oklahoma on November 7-8

Ancestry.com, the Oklahoma Genealogical Society, and the Oklahoma Historical Society present Ancestry Day in Oklahoma, two days of genealogy and native culture, on November 7-8. Both novice and experienced genealogists are welcome at this event. Registration to the main event is $40 and includes admission to all Saturday classes presented by Ancestry.com.

On Friday, November 7, participants may choose from three bus tours exploring Historic Downtown Guthrie, Chickasaw Country, or Scenic Downtown Oklahoma City. Bus tours are 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and the cost is $69 per person.

Friday sessions include two concurrent tracks. Learn about the resources of the Oklahoma Historical Society, historic newspapers, Oklahoma and Indian Territory history, land records and more. Debra Spindle and Billie Fogarty will present these sessions at Metro Technology Center’s Springlake Campus Conference Center from 1-4:45 p.m. At the Oklahoma History Center speakers William D. Welge, Gene Norris, Kenneth Sivard, and Mary Jane Warde will explore the history of the Five Civilized Tribes from 1-4:45 p.m. The History Center will offer free admission to museum galleries for class attendees. Registration to either of the Friday sessions is $5 per person.

Friday evening the Oklahoma History Center will host “Native Reflections: Experience Tribal Traditions,” a reception from 5-7 p.m. featuring Chickasaw dancers and demonstrations of American Indian finger weaving, beadwork, and other native craft techniques. The reception is $20 per person and refreshments will be served. History Center galleries will be open for this event.

On Saturday, November 8, all activities will be held in downtown Oklahoma City at the Renaissance Ballroom in the Cox Convention Center. Classes are 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. and include Ancestry 101: New & Review; Getting the Most from Ancestry.com; Using AncestryDNA to Further Your Family History Research; the exciting new American Indian Collection on Ancestry; and Sharing Your Family Story. Door prizes will be awarded throughout the day. Participants have the option of enjoying lunch on their own in nearby Bricktown or purchasing tickets to a special lunch on location. The lunch program will feature Choctaw author and storyteller Tim Tingle. Tickets are $35 per person and seating is limited.

For complete conference details and registration information visit www.okhistory.org/ancestryday or contact Laura Martin at 405-522-5225 or lmartin@okhistory.org. Ancestry Day in Oklahoma is sponsored in part by the Oklahoma Department of Tourism.

History Center to host Dutch oven cooking class

Join the Oklahoma History Center on Saturday, November 15, from 1 to 5 p.m. for a hands-on learning experience in Dutch oven cooking. Learn a variety of recipes as you create a dish and discover how to use a Dutch oven in your own backyard. Cost for the class is $15 and all necessary materials will be provided.

Registration is required and space is limited, so sign up early. The class will begin inside the museum for background information, instructions on how to care for and clean Dutch ovens, recipes, and different cooking methods. The majority of the class will take place outdoors, preparing a group meal for all to enjoy. Dutch ovens and food items are provided by the History Center. Please remember to dress for the weather and no open-toed shoes or sandals are permitted. For more information or to register, please contact the Oklahoma History Center Education Department at education@okhistory.org or 405-522-3602.

The Oklahoma History Center, a division of the Oklahoma Historical Society, has achieved accreditation from the American Alliance of Museums (AAM), the highest national recognition for a museum. Accreditation signifies excellence to the museum community, to governments, funders, outside agencies, and to the museum-going public.

AAM accreditation is the field’s primary vehicle for quality assurance, self-regulation, and public accountability, and earns national recognition for a museum for its commitment to excellence in all that it does: governance, collections stewardship, public programs, financial stability, high professional standards, and continued institutional improvement. Developed and sustained by museum professionals for thirty-five years, AAM’s Museum Accreditation Program strengthens the profession by promoting practices that enable leaders to make informed decisions, allocate resources wisely, and provide the best possible service to the public.

History Center Director Dan Provo said, “The History Center is very pleased to have successfully completed the rigorous accreditation process. The two-year process involved the entire museum staff, volunteers, OHS leadership, and board members of both the OHS and the Friends of the Oklahoma History Center. The History Center strives to achieve excellence in all areas of operation. Accreditation lets us know that we operate at the highest levels and on par with some of the best museums in the country.”

Of the nation’s estimated 35,000 museums, 1,005 are currently accredited. The Oklahoma History Center is one of only twelve accredited museums out of roughly five hundred museums in Oklahoma.

“Accreditation assures the people of Oklahoma that their state museum is among the finest in the nation,” said Ford W. Bell, president of the AAM. “As a result, the citizens can take considerable pride in their homegrown institution, for its commitment to excellence and for the value it brings to the state.”

Accreditation is a rigorous process that examines all aspects of a museum’s operations. To earn accreditation, a museum first must conduct a year of self-study, and then undergo a site visit by a team of peer reviewers. AAM’s Accreditation Commission, an independent and autonomous body of museum professionals, review and evaluate the self-study and the visiting committee report to determine whether a museum should receive accreditation. While the time to complete the process varies by museum, it generally takes three years.

The Oklahoma History Center opened in November 2005. Since that time it has served roughly 1.8 million people, including almost six hundred thousand students and four hundred thousand people participating in special events. With accreditation, the Oklahoma History Center with the Museum and Research Center becomes the only facility in the world that is accredited by the AAM, is an affiliate of the Smithsonian Institution, and is an affiliate of the US National Archives.
