The Winner Williams Collection contains copies of galleys from the comic strip "Winner Williams" that ran in The Black Dispatch from 1969 to August 1971 and the Oklahoma City Times from September 1971 to April 1973. Dr. Duncan Hall was approached by the editor of The Black Dispatch to write a cartoon for his newspaper about black children after learning of his research in South Africa. Dr. Hall accepted and after writing the comic for a few years on his own, he decided to find an illustrator who was experienced in drawing African American children. Mr. Don Heath was recommended by a colleague and the two formed a team in 1971. The pro bono comic strip ended in 1973, when Dr. Hall and Mr. Heath ran out of time and money.

Also included in the collection is a copy of The Gospel According to Winner, Larry and Friends, the book written by Dr. Hall and Mr. Heath about their comic strip.
